Summary of the Activity	As a part of Continuous Internal Assessment (CIA) and sustainable engineering club activity, the department of Mechanical and Automobile Engineering organized the sustainable R/C car building competition for (college students) on 17th November 2022. This event was organized to bring out the creativity of the students, and to bring an awareness about use of sustainable material in vehicle making among the youths. The event was carried out in Students square and was hosted by one of the student volunteer from 3rd semester. There were more than 30 R/C car models which were submitted by students from 1st, 3rd and 5th semester. The top three models based on competition criteria were selected by the juries of the competition. The event was formally inaugurated with ribbon cutting by guest of honour at the venue. The Head of the Department, Dr. Gurumurthy Hebbar gave the welcome address and opening remark about the sustainable R/C car building competition to the audience. The Inaugural speech was presented by H Raghavendra (IRPS, Government Tool Room and Training Centre, Karnataka). He addressed the students about the role and engineering applications of sustainable materials in different sectors and about the immediate need to spread awareness about sustainability to the public. Further, Dr. Iven Jose (Dean, School of Engineering and Technology,

	CHRIST (Deemed to be University) gave many insights about the importance of hands on activities for Continuous Internal Assessment. He also motivated and applauded the participants for their efforts and innovative approach for building the sustainable R/C vehicles. Later, the guest of honour along with dean interacted with participants and all the participants presented and explained about their developed models. After that, the competition started with announcement of evaluation criteria as (1) Use of sustainable material (2) Design (3) Ramp (4) Full track (5) Time. The competition was judged by Prof. Shibu K Mani from Civil Engineering Department and Prof. Sushanth G from Electronics and Communication Engineering Department. The participants presented their models with extraordinary creative skills and played the car to travel across the track and ramp. Finally, the results were given out. The 3rd Place was secured by teams Overdrive and Fahrzeug from 3rd semester Automobile and Robotics & Mechatronics Engineering students, 2nd place was secured by team Road runners from 3rd semester Automobile and Mechanical Engineering students and the 1st place is bagged by team Pegasus from 3rd semester Mechanical Engineering students. All the participants were provided with participation certificates and the winners were provided with announced prize money (1st prize-Rs.5000/-, 2nd prize-Rs.3000/-, 3rd prize-Rs.2000/-). In the end the sustainable R/C car building competition were a grand success with around 150 participants collectively from the Mechanical and Automobile Engineering department and were informed about various important aspects of sustainability.

Synopsis of the Activity (Description)

Highlights of the Activity	1. The importance of NodeJS and its comparison to Django was discussed, along with a basic tutorial on how to build a server in NodeJS. 2. Methods to retrieve data from a JSON file and display it in a HTML page were demonstrated. Also demonstrated how to incorporate an API from the Internet into a local website.
Key Takeaways	1. NodeJS is a runtime environment to execute JavaScript, and is preferred over other similar frameworks or environments due to its speed and ease of use. 2. Servers can be built using NodeJS, and APIs can be incorporated into websites using NodeJS and by parsing JSON data.
Summary of the Activity	The main objective of the workshop was to give students an introduction to NodeJS and its functionalities, along with to show them the ease with which tasks can be carried out using it. Moreover, coding activities in C on day 2 kept students engaged with the material.
Follow-up plan	All code used during the workshop was uploaded to a public GitHub repository for students to access and use, and resources to further explore NodeJS and its functionalities were provided to students.

Descriptive Report

The event was organised as a way of introducing liberal arts students to the many career opportunities available to them after the completion of their degree. The event commenced with Dr. Aditi Bhartiya, faculty of Liberal Arts, introducing Ms. Saviola de Mello, a program and event specialist currently situated in Sharjah. Ms. de Mello took over, introducing herself and stating her background in Liberal Arts. She went on to describe her Liberal Arts education as one which instilled a strong sense of social responsibility and imparted strong intellectual and transferable skills.

She advised the participants to make full use of the practical aspects of their course. She encouraged them to take all and every opportunity available to gain more experience in different careers. They should use this time to network with as many people as possible and venture out of their comfort zones. She told the participants to immerse themselves in different experiences and broaden their horizons as much as possible through their flexible course structure. Since a liberal arts student is taught to view the world through a multidisciplinary lens, she advised the students to make maximum use of their unique perspective.

Ms. de Mello went on to describe her own selection of subjects and how they helped her during her career. Her background in Anthropology allowed her to understand various cultures while her Media Studies background gave her the tools she needed for advertising and marketing. Using her Film Studies background she was able to help organise a Film Fest in Sharjah. She told the participants that first year is the time to explore and to figure out what to do while internships starting from second year onwards must help in your course of action. Her experience during her internship directly impacted what she wanted to do in life. It allowed her to put into application what knowledge she had gained through her courses. Her experience in organising exhibitions and art gallery events have also given her great insight into the market scene around cultural products so much so that they inspired her to create her own line of products centered around South and West Asian motifs. This culminated in “Archeopoloji” a venture which uses recycled materials embellished with Middle Eastern and South Asian motifs, designed by women from Pakistan, Philippines and the UK.

Following this, Dr. Prerana relayed some common anxieties of the students about future career prospects and asked Ms Saviola to provide some guidance regarding the same. Ms. Saviola replied that it is true that Liberal Arts as a subject is very unconventional and often seems like it would not work but she advised the students to take some time to think about what they would like to be in life and chart their own path. Even if it gets discouraging, stick to what you want. Dr. Prerana thanked her for the answer and asked her to share her inspiration behind starting her own business. She also asked Ms. Saviola to advise the students on how to sustainably run a small business. Ms. de Mello provided her insights such as being active on Instagram, attending exhibitions and events where sponsors and such could be met and to create communities of people with similar interests. She emphasised the role of promoting yourself to the right people and making connections that would propel you forward.

She answered a few more questions from the students regarding various aspects of running a small business and of applying the knowledge gained through Liberal Arts in real life. Dr. Aditi ended the event by thanking Ms. Saviola for her fruitful insights and guidance that would surely be helpful to the participants.

Descriptive Report

A leadership workshop was conducted for the students of 5BALIB at CHRIST (Deemed to Be University), Pune Lavasa Campus. It dabbled with themes of bonding, teamwork, initiative, goal setting and planning. It was structured to be experiential learning with activity-based sessions. The main goal was to impart a helpful application of the 'inquiry-based learning approach' with data and information being converted into useful knowledge. It was an opportunity for the students to forge close bonds among themselves and indulge in teamwork-building activities.

Day 1

The students travelled from Bangalore to Pune via train and from Pune to Lavasa via bus. Upon arrival at the Lavasa Campus, they were provided with dinner. Rooms were allotted to them as they checked in.

Day 2

The students were given coupons worth Rs. 300 each to buy breakfast for 3 days and dinner for 1 day. All the other meals were provided to them in the Banquet Hall. Sociometry and ice-breaking sessions were organised. The students voiced their interests as a way to find out who among their classmates shared the same ones. They were divided into groups for the next session and asked to express certain situations without talking to each other. For example, a worm being happy in a fruit, bridging interpersonal issues, etc. Following this, new groups were formed, and one by one, all students talked about a topic assigned to them for 30 seconds. The topics were democracy, relationship with exams, describing your home, etc. Yet again, four new groups were formed, and topics were assigned to them that they were asked to find creative ways to depict via photographs they clicked while exploring the campus. These topics included liberal arts, change, one with nature, togetherness, and solitude. Post lunch, students gathered in the Smart Room, where they noted down their thoughts on critical topics and discussed them as a class. Following the discussion, the students split into groups and attempted to pass marbles from one pipe to another without dropping them as a team-building activity. For the next session titled, 'Lavasa Trail: Business Plan in 7 Clicks, 1 Video', the students explored the campus up to the nearby lake, all the while ideating business models that could be implemented in Lavasa. The day culminated with preparation for cultural activities and dinner.

Day 3

Students participated in a game where they were pitched a hypothetical situation where they died at age 50 and tasked to write their own obituary with a focus on having taken Liberal Arts. Description of their death, insight into their life and liberal arts journey had to be included. A business plan session followed, wherein the students presented the ideas they had formulated the day before and engaged in a Q&A session with themselves and the faculty. At night, a bonfire was lit, and games were played. The students were made to sit in a circle around the bonfire in an order decided by random chits. This was done to increase communication between those who didn't usually converse with each other. Multiple games were played, like complimenting a person whose name was on a randomly chosen chit, a dance-off and then picking random questions and either answering them or doing activities based on them. The students danced for fun and even put on their Colour Week performance for Dr Fr Jossy P George.

Day 4

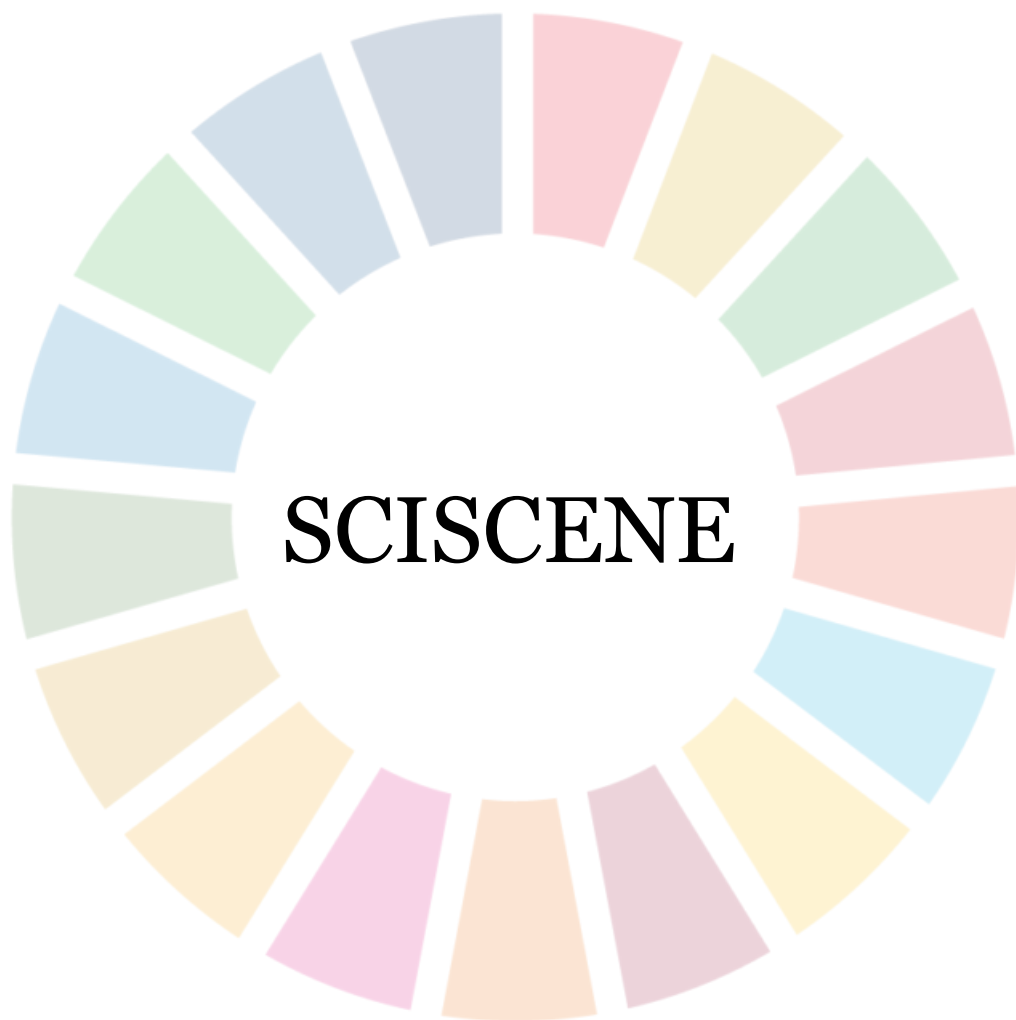

The last day started with a short morning trek, catching a glimpse of the local dam. After breakfast, for their last session, the students noted down and then discussed their takeaways from the leadership programme. They even talked about the different things they were grateful for. Before departure, the class leaders met with Dr Fr. Jossy P George to express their gratitude and share certain concluding thoughts. The students made their way back to Bangalore via bus.

How triple bottom line can be used to measure performance of firms?

from David Winstler to everyone: 4:21 PM
Much we talk about the role of corporates for sustainable development... What about our role as consumers? Having known about the water footprints and carbon footprints in most of the products we use, are we as consumers ready to alter lifestyle, give up using certain products??? Would this change be possible? Corporates as we know listen to consumer needs. So what would be our role as consumers for sustainable development... Any or all of the panelists may kindly respond and reflect

We faced several issues with the Wi-Fi and room allotment and began 30 minutes later than the planned schedule. It was a submission round on Google classroom for 90-minute duration. The second round started at 2:15 PM with the briefing to the participants. The participants submitted the video on Google classroom and the round was evaluated by 10pm. It was a submission round of 3-hour duration and an elimination round as well. One person backed out of this round due to electricity issues.

Brownie Task II: Comic Strip

This round started late in the evening. It was a submission and cumulative round of 2 hour and 30 minutes. Participants were really creative in their submissions and the results were evaluated by the team itself.

DAY 2

Round III: Formulation with Decision-making and Forecasting (Overnight Round)

Due to the constant delays during the day, this round began at 12:02 AM on the next day, where the task was briefed to the participants. The duration of this submission cum elimination round was 6 hours. The round went smoothly but one participant backed out of the overnighter due to health issues. The submissions were evaluated by 10:15 AM.

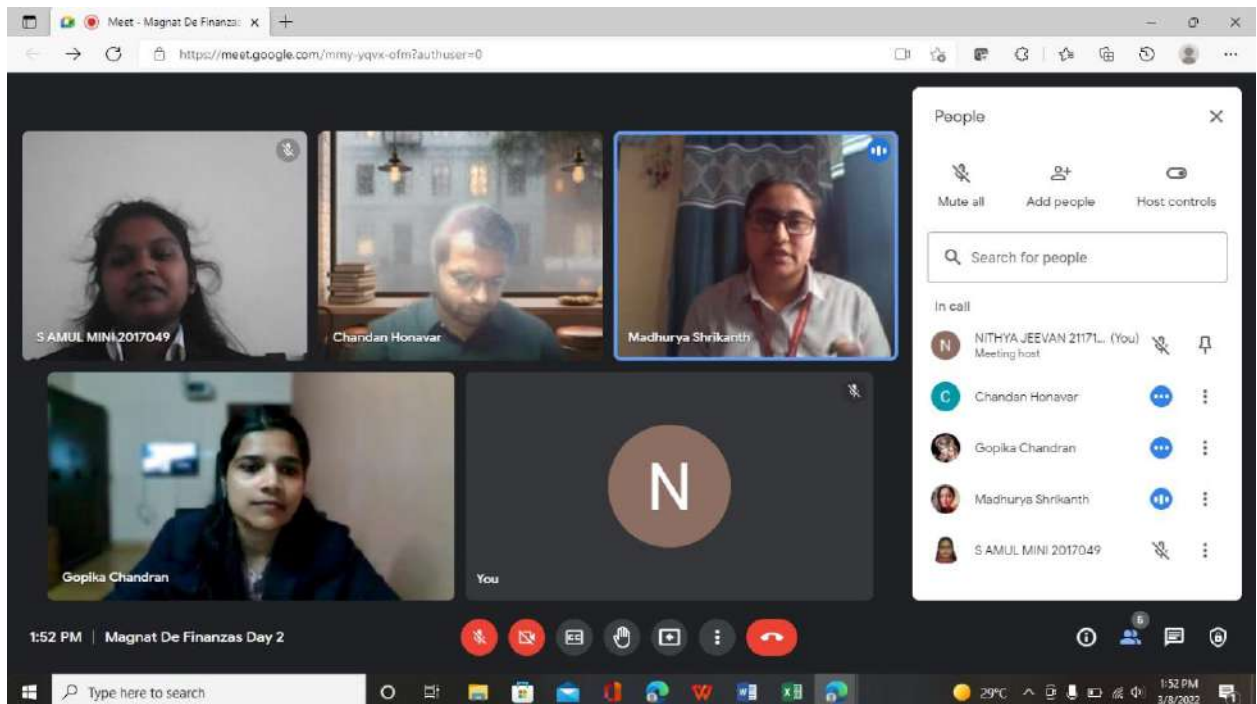

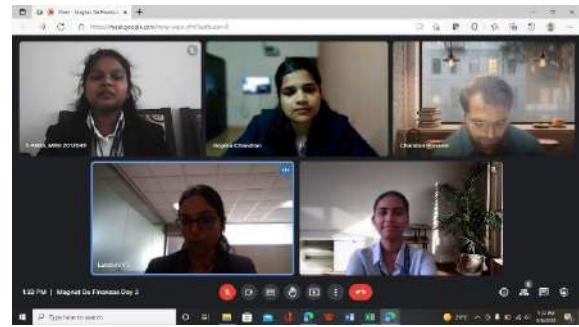

Round IV: Law and Ethics (Semi-Finals)

The briefing of the task and instructions for the day was given to the participants at 12:45 PM. Since it was a stage round, the case was mailed to the participants 30 minutes prior to their presentation slot. The round officially began at 1:00 PM where external judges were called to judge. The judges went beyond their questioning time by almost half an hour causing a delay in the final round. The elimination round ended at 2:43 PM without elimination as one more participant backed out.

Round V: Leadership and Management (Finale)

The final round was conducted on the stage in KE Auditorium. Delayed by the previous round, it began at 2:45 PM instead of 2:15 PM and was held for the three finalists post a short briefing. The case was mailed to them 10 minutes prior to their slot timings and the presentation duration had to be cut short drastically. The round ended at 3:05 PM, after which the judges scores were compiled and the winner was determined.

PARTICIPANT'S FEEDBACK

- “I wish there was a bit more time given for the last 2 rounds to prepare” – Madhurya Shrikanth.

JUDGE'S FEEDBACK

“I just wanted to add that,

1. Have a person separately for all the technical stuff.
2. The case study was too rigid. There was not much room for the CFO to be creative or come up with more options to justify himself or his company as the case study clearly stated that the company and the CFO were at fault.

3. The criteria for marking them was too much. As in, the number of parameters on which they were to be judged and also the marks added to each parameter.

You could have just added 5 marks for each parameter and then increased it to how much ever you want such as 15 or 10. Like they reduce it for Mid-Sems etc.

4. Proofread the case study once it is prepared.

Because there may be mistakes and you might not even observe because you've been working on it for long. Give it to someone else and ask them to read it.

Great effort and teamwork. Keep up the good work.

Also have a bit of fun while you're at it.” – Chandan Honavar (Round 4 Judge).

“The case was really good but 2 or 3 minutes to question is not fair to the judges or participants” – Raghunandan Sir (Round 5 Judge).

SAM22 01	FINANCIAL LITERACY AMONG RURAL HOUSEHOLDS WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO VAZHAPPALLY PANCHAYATH

Abstract

Financial literacy is considered as one of the important factors to be addressed in 21 st century. As research demonstrates, financial illiteracy is widespread among developed countries as well as in rapidly changing markets. (Lusardi & Mitchell, 2011). As the young generation is being more educated and gets in touch with the importance of financial literacy and its benefits. There are certain circumstances under which this issue cannot be addressed properly especially among the people living in rural areas. This study addresses mainly the first four sustainable development goals in order to reach the findings and conclusions. The study clearly estimates there is no significant relationship between monthly income and financial literacy. Knowledge about savings and investment is easily accessible to everyone these days due to the advancement in information technology. Yet it cannot be taken for granted among people with low education, women and minorities. This poses a challenge as to how to communicate the information on financial services to the relevant people who need it most, in order to save them from the clutches of unscrupulous brokers and fraudulent people.

SAM22 02	USE OF BRAND STORYTELLING TO GAIN COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE IN APPAREL INDUSTRY: A CASE OF RAYMOND
Abstract: Brand storytelling lets companies create a narrative around their company and its products which helps them effectively communicate with the consumers about its products, brand values and what the brand represents. The purpose of this study is to understand the major outcomes of Brand storytelling in Raymond groups and which key attributes lead to the consumer purchase intention. The thesis opted for a quantitative study where the researcher took a sample size of 154 participants through convenience sampling. The quantitative responses were gathered, and the data was accompanied by an in-depth analysis. Through this study, we were able to identify that there is a significant relationship between the independent variables (narrative processing, brand attitude, and self-brand connection) and dependent variable (purchase intension) with regard to the brand storytelling of Raymond’s Group. IBM SPSS was used to conduct a Multiple linear regression test and Mediation test to decipher the relationship between independent and dependent variables. The outcomes showed that Brand storytelling elements such as Narrative processing, brand attitude, and self-brand connection which are considered as a primary motive of the purchase intension for Raymond consumers. The research lacks a cross-cultural perspective as it was concentrated within the Indian Male Consumers. This thesis provides managerial wherein marketing heads of the Raymond’s group can understand their target audience better with the help of such insights and therefore this study can be used to segment customers based on their narrative processing, brand attitude, and self-brand connection. This study fulfills the need for research in the field of how purchase intention is affected by narrative processing, brand attitude, and self-brand connection and what aspects of brand storytelling can be used to create marketing campaigns. Keywords: Brand Storytelling, Narrative processing, Brand attitude, self-brand connection, and Purchase intension.

SAM22 03	IMPACT OF PRIVACY-RELATED ANTECEDENTS ON CUSTOMER'S HIGHLY DEFENSIVE BEHAVIOURS
ABSTRACT The research is trying to find the impacts of factors related to privacy on customer's defensive behaviour during online shopping among Indian customers. The defensive mechanism used by the customer to secure data privacy. Factors like corporate privacy responsibility, Regulatory protection, Trust, Privacy concerns, Privacy empowerment, past privacy are considered here. This research is based on the Power-Responsibility Equilibrium theory which states that the powerholders like corporates and governments have the responsibility to protect the privacy of people. The questionnaire was prepared based on these factors and defensive behaviour. A questionnaire circulated in the form of google forms. A total of 346 people from different parts of the country participated. The results showed that there is an impact of these factors on defensive behaviour. At the end of the study findings and recommendations for government and managers are given. Keywords: Defensive behaviour, Privacy concern, Privacy empowerment, corporate privacy responsibility and Regulatory protection.

SAM22 04	EFFECT OF BRAND STORYTELLING AND OTHER BRAND DIMENSIONS ON ATHLETIC APPAREL BRAND MARKETING- WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO NIKE
ABSTRACT Brand storytelling allows companies to create sustainable marketing practice, a narrative around their company and its products which helps them effectively communicate with the consumers about its products, brand values and what the brand represents. The purpose of this paper was to identify and understand how brand dimensions especially those closely related narrative processing will affect the consumers purchase decision within the sportswear apparel industry. A 28-question survey was conducted to measure the extent to which the respondents were capable/affected by a certain factor and then this was analysed to see how they interlinked and to see they would contribute to purchase intention. The questionnaire consisted of 5 sections each measuring different factors. It was an exploratory research. The sample could have been more geographically generalised but due to the resources at hand it was limited to South India. Future research could use a different or modified measurement tool to get more reliable data for measuring narrative processing construct. Through this study we were able to identify that narrative processing itself does not have a significant impact on purchase whereas the other brand dimensions such as brand attitude and self-brand connection does have a positive effect on the purchase intention. However narrative processing did have an indirect effect on purchase intention when both brand attitude or self-brand connection was mediating their relationship. It was also found that using celebrities and emotional connection proves to make the storytelling approach more ideal. This paper was done in a very domestically growing environment in the country and shows the general customer purchase intention within the sports apparel industry in the countries fashion market. Keywords – Brand storytelling, Narrative processing, Brand dimensions, Brand attitude, Self- brand connection

RESILIENCE AND REINVENTION IN TRANSFORMING GLOBAL OUTLOOK IN THE ERA OF SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

ABSTRACT

The industrial revolution brought great progress to humanity. The global population grew by sevenfold, life expectancy doubled, economic output increased hundred fold. There are as many telephone connections as people in the world. However many are left behind. Some three billion people still do not have access to modern cooking and sanitation. A billions go home hungry and also do not have access to electricity, yet many of them have to charge their phones. Those left behind are most vulnerable to the negative consequences of industrial revolution from climate change to biodiversity loss. With the modern development rich are getting richer leaving the poor behind to bear the consequences. Therefore transformation towards sustainable future is the only alternative possible to protect the people and planet .Now with the pandemic hit and the war situation there is greater need for sustainability for our future generations. Harm is already done there is need for resilience and reinvention to transform global outlook in the era of sustainable development.

The Sustainable Development Goals(SDG) and the Paris Agreement on Climate Change call for deep transformation at a global level, that require combined actions by government, civil society, science and business. This paper discusses the key areas that would be necessary to achieve the SDG outcomes and how their implementation might be organized into a limited set of six transformations namely Education, gender and inequality; Health, wellbeing Demography; Energy de carbonization and sustainable industry; Sustainable food, land ,water, Oceans ;Sustainable cities and communities; and digital revolution for sustainable development. Achievement of six transformation will require, deep, deliberate, long-term structural changes in resource use, infrastructure, institutions, technologies, and social relations, which have to happen in relatively short time. By achieving changes in these six areas we can save both people and planet.

Abstract:

As the e-commerce industry has grown rapidly in recent years, it has become critical to examine the customer engagement in these platforms, particularly privacy-related behaviour. Many studies show that internet users are becoming more concerned about their privacy and aware of their privacy rights. However, there exists a 'Privacy Paradox' where consumers' behaviour does not reflect their concerns and awareness while purchasing in e-retail websites.

This research studies how different situations in e-retail purchasing induces the privacy paradox. A survey instrument was used to collect data from 380 e-retail users. The instrument measures the customers' behaviour in various situations involved in e-retail purchasing. Among the different situations tested, during flash sales and product shortages, people exhibit highly paradoxical behaviour. The primary benefits that lead to paradoxical behaviour include saving time, cost- saving, and improving product suggestions. The study reveals when the benefit is substantial, such as discounts or access to exclusive products, people are willing to share even confidential and sensitive information.

The study's outcome suggests that e-retail businesses should be mindful while collecting sensitive private information as customers tend to provide such information due to the impulse of the situation. Therefore, e-retail businesses have the responsibility to alert the customers at the moment of filling in the information.

Abstract: The Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), also known as the Global Goals, adopted by all United Nations Member States in 2015 includes 17 Sustainable Development Goals, building on the principle of “leaving no one behind”. The fourth goal in the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development is ‘the access to quality education’. It is here where our study titled “MOOCs in Higher Education” gains its importance. With the advancement of information technology, the walls of the classrooms are now not a barrier for students as well as teachers to enhance their knowledge. For students and working professionals, the internet offers a new platform to conduct their studies and expand their vision in the form of Massive Online Open Courses or popularly known as MOOC courses. There are plenty of platforms that provide the students with a wide variety of courses and the prominent ones being Coursera, edX, FutureLearn, Udacity, and the India governments’ initiative SWAYAM platform of which many are controlled and maintained by recognized universities. Our study is not intended as an exhaustive survey of all aspects in the field of MOOCs. It aimed to access the level of awareness of various MOOC courses and satisfaction level of the users. The study revealed that majority of the respondents are aware about the various MOOC platforms and the most satisfying factor is the convenience to complete course wherever we are.

Throughout human history, people's economic, sociocultural, environmental, and political mentalities have been shifted by remarkable resilience followed by reinvention. Reinvention recognizes new possibilities from numerous adversities and transforms the global outlook, whereas resilience demonstrates society's strengths. When people realize that the only way to achieve economic equilibrium is to pursue sustainable development, stability and reinvention methods are created to support that goal. Every new financial crisis will exacerbate our miseries. Humans' tremendous conquering nature, on the other hand, fills the gap in the situation through strong communal thinking and provides us with a great conclusion with new, acceptable solutions. When problems from many perspectives are addressed, development occurs. The current issue is to create a healthy, competitive economy while also protecting the environment and promoting social inclusion. As a result, this paper presents a critical literature review of how resilience and reinvention transform the global outlook in the era of sustainable development and essential takeaways and new suggestions derived from real-life examples, focusing on the post-pandemic post-Russia-Ukraine war periods. The current review study is based on secondary data gathered from various government publications; publications of foreign governments or international bodies and their subsidiary organizations; research journals; books, magazines, and newspapers. The research will look into the role of resilience and reinvention in long-term development. Moreover, it proposes to examine the post-Covid era and the Russia-Ukraine conflict (need for strength and resistance). Thereby aiming to emphasize the importance of public policy. The probable outcomes of the study evaluate the relevance of sustainable development and public policy, the consequences of current policies, the necessity to reshape previous approaches, and new research proposals.

Abstract

“If we are going to see real development in the world, then our best investment is women” Desmond Tutu.

These words inspire everyone that women play a major role in the development of the world. Now, grabbing the attention towards our country's rapture for women upliftment in the society in the sense of political, social, economic, cultural and civil. In the modern era, Indian women are knocked up through different educational awareness programs which have resulted in the success stories in the various fields. Women want to earn, save and invest to see the financial growth of themselves. Earlier, women used to depend on their spouse or parents for getting money to make fruitful investments. But, now women are earning from their own efforts and hard work which yields a lot of money. This paper chews over the investment pattern of working women in MNC's in Bangalore. One of the studies reveals a report that about 25% of MNCs have women employees. This leads to a question of where these women are using their earned money. Whether the investment mindset among working women is rising accordingly or not. Women are still using traditional investments like gold and silver but she is diversified to modern investment patterns like shares, mutual funds, debentures etc. Indian women are awakening now, thanks to education, and are changing their role from house to office. But now the question arises whether Indian women are changing their roles from salaried individuals to strong investors. Saving is the regular habit that is embodied in women. With the passage of time, the current generation of women, who are equally employed, have knowledge about various investment avenues, such as shares, debentures, mutual funds, real estate and so on. Having abundant knowledge without action is wasteful. Thus, working women in India who are saving their earned money and just devaluing the money due to inflation can enjoy the fruitful returns from the strong investment by keeping a step ahead of taking risk and creating wealth.

MINUTES OF THE MEETING

The first official meeting of the Samshodhan Core team was held on 2nd November 2021 at 4:30 pm via hybrid mode. The meeting consisted of all the 10 seniors in attendance. Alex and Nelson led the meeting by briefing us on the work to be done and the tentative dates. It was decided that we would have to start working on the theme and all should look into different areas for the theme as it is not restricted to the commerce stream. Other important information was also given to us, such as:

1. Timeline for the one-day research needs to be planned and the date needs to be fixed, wherein it shouldn't clash with ours or any other colleges' exam dates/ conferences.
2. Posters and Brochures are the 1st work to begin on
3. As of now, the event is planned to be conducted in hybrid mode and we will be planning the same.
4. We will have an official meet on 9th November with the program coordinators, i.e. Naveen sir and Anuradha ma'am, and Karthigai sir for the finalization of the theme.

Further, work was segregated between the 10 members into 4 teams as follows:

We were also informed that the current tentative date would fall between the last week of February and the first week of March. The meeting ended after clarifications, at 5:30 pm.

04.11.2021

The second official meet was held on 4th November 2021 at 3:10 pm in hybrid mode with 13 core team members in attendance, 9 seniors, and 4 new juniors. Liya was absent. Updates from the last meet till now:

1. Payment link has been created, but is yet to receive approval. Since the conference is for PG students only, all PG students throughout India can apply to attend the conference.
2. Regarding the Guests, 2 have been confirmed and 2 more to go. One guest will be present the inauguration, another will be present for valedictory ceremony, and the remaining 2 will take up technical sessions.
3. Invites have been sent out, participants registration is pending. We haven't received a good response for the event, but there have been queries for the same.
4. The budget has been approved, and all the necessary permissions gotten.
5. We need to attract at least 20 to 30 participants to make the event a success. We have got only 4 valid responses as of now. Therefore, all 13 members could get 2 participants each from your previous institutions.
6. Change in conference date from 8th to 22nd march – The event will be held ONLINE COMPLETELY and there is no hybrid mode. Additionally, even though the event is online, we will be working from campus.

Duties from here on are as follows:

Team	Duties
Creative	• Picture, name and designation of Speaker has to be included in Brochure • The brochure content, i.e. the content and speaker details to be finalized • Badge design/ Conference ID to be designed
Documentation	• Create content and structure for LinkedIn and Instagram pages • No need to open account because we have not yet got approval for it • Planning ideas – polling, day to day, breakthrough etc.
PR	• Thorough scanning of resource person's resume to be done and filter only the important or significant details • They are our brand image/ambassadors, so this is important • ASK permission to use their photos and designations (legal consent) • Date and time of the event need to be clarified with them as well as the tentative schedule for the day
Hospitality	• There is a budget of Rs. 3000 each for guest and Rs. 2000 each for speaker. Put it to good use and use it completely. • Rs. 30,000 allocated for food and refreshments, which can be used on good food – scan for good hotels. Refreshments also to be considered • Take into account faculty members and others who might be present that day (about 150 people) • Momentos will be couriered later to the guests, since they are attending online. But the pitching for the momento is pending (price, design). • Momento should be customized to Christ. Plan to order it late in March, so the order can be placed a week before the event. And we want the delivery on 22nd – not before or after – to avoid risks. • By February 15th- Give the budget and the pitch.

Some ideas for the members to consider:

1. Work-done-entrepreneurship theory – if others don't respond go ahead with your work.
2. By 31st everything should be ready – if luxury is given, utilize it – if no idea, ask for time.
3. If any health concerns (yours and family) are there, kindly inform any of the seniors in the team.
4. Take care of your health and also take time to complete your duties.
5. Keep the discussions of the meet within the team and confidential

Note: ONLY FOR PG STUDENTS – NO ONE ELSE

The ceremony managed to inspire all the students to join the club and follow their paths as entrepreneurs.
Key Takeaways	● The inauguration of UDAAN gave the students an idea of the working of the entrepreneurship cell. ● The interactive session with the two guest speakers Mr. Ajay Bothra and Mr. Rishav Dubey was the highlight of the day. The audience was extremely interested in listening to them, as their aura was captivating. The co-founders of Moshi-Moshi provided the audience with several useful insights, one of which was “be that fool, the fool did not know it was impossible, and that's why he did it”. They also said that every failure and every hardship life throw at you polishes you into becoming a better person. ● Another point they stressed was ‘perception mapping’.

	They elaborated on this by sharing their own life experiences. Networking and talking to people from different sections of the society and parts of the country is what made them understand the market life of each product or idea. • The co-founders also believed in taking huge risks. One could only take huge risks if one had a growth mindset. They also validated their points by sharing with us their future goals for Moshi Moshi. From expanding and growing internationally to creating the coolest office spaces in India, one could see the passion, dedication, and undying entrepreneurship spirit in both Mr. Ajay Bothra and Mr. Rishav Dubey. • Overall, the inauguration ceremony inspired many young minds into pursuing entrepreneurship. It managed to leave behind a crowd that was highly motivated and willing to explore different perspectives to pursue and fail.
Summary of the Activity	The inauguration ceremony organized by UDAAN on 6th September 2022 at 10 A.M in the Main Auditorium of CHRIST Deemed to be University was a success. The ceremony was emceed by Avanthika Prasad and Lakshita Shrimali who engaged nearly 550 students of the Department of Commerce of CHRIST (Deemed to be University). Starting with the lighting of the lamp as a symbol of positivity and enlightenment, the audience was welcomed and addressed by Dr. Deep Jyoti Gurung. The crowd was also addressed by two of the members of Udaan- Mehak and Pranav. The inauguration ceremony was attended by Mr Rishav Dubey and MrAjay Bothra, the co-founders of a flourishing startup- Moshi Moshi, and was a great source of motivation and enthusiasm for the students. The highlight of the event was the speech given by the chief guests as both of them were alumni of CHRIST University who started their business while they were still in college. It was a huge source of inspiration for the students, to listen to the stories of people who take risks in the world and put forth their ideas. Mr. Rishav Dubey was an integral part of starting UDAAN, the entrepreneurship cell and hence, having him as a guest speaker to see this club starting yet another year, was a huge boost and motivation for the team. The ceremony was successfully concluded with a question-and-answer session, which left the crowd with a feeling of harmony, joy, and zeal to do something new. After the guest speakers were felicitated by Dr. Prakash M, a brief about the recruitment drive for the first years was given by the Chief of Staff and Director of Operations. All students were encouraged to apply, regardless of their experience in entrepreneurship. The event finally concluded with a dance performance by team Taal.

Follow-up Plan, if any	A feedback form was circulated to attendees soon after the event to evaluate the success of the event.
